Forget cute little computer animation. Tomcat Alley is the real deal, hotshot, with balls-to-the-wall live action. It's full-screen, full-on aerial action like you've never experienced. Tomcat Alley features seven different combat missions against air and ground targets. And you don't just see the action from under the canopy, you also get a bird's-eye view outside the plane. In fact, Sega TruVideo™ technology takes you as close to the edge as you can get without packing your own chute and wearing one of those helmets with the goofy nicknames on it. Once you've been to Tomcat Alley and back, no little simulator game will do. So bail out on the rest and lock on to the real jet fighter action of Tomcat Alley. Only on Sega CD.

Sega Invites Girls into The World of Video Game Production

Sega CEO Tom Kalinske talks new game ideas with his daughters Nicole, 7, and Ashley, 5.

Alene Fonesler, group director of Sega's marketing, listens to ideas for new games and marketing strategies.

Here's the premise for a new game.

Jane, the hero, makes her home in the jungle, where she protects wild animals from extinction. Each level finds Jane battling poachers who would harm her endangered friends. With the help of a magic necklace, she dispatches these heartless hunters in a non-violent (but no less effective) manner.

Sound good? Sega president Tom Kalinske thought so when he selected Women of the Angles as the best new game idea to come from a brainstorming session held with more than 50 school-age girls as part of the second annual "Take Our Daughters to Work Day" program, held at Sega's headquarters in California on Thursday, April 28.

Women at Work

"Take Our Daughters to Work Day" was created by the Ms. Foundation last year to help bolster the confidence and self-esteem of girls across America. By exposing these girls to work environments early on in life, the foundation hopes to make them aware of the professional possibilities for women in business.

Girls sit in for a group brainstorming session.

As the West Coast lead sponsor of the national event, Sega invited its employees to bring their daughters, relatives, and friends to work with them. Sega also invited 50 Girl Scouts from communities throughout the San Francisco Bay Area. Each of these Girl Scouts was befriended by a "mentor" from Sega who stayed with her throughout the day, showing her the ropes in the video game business.

The day included a tour of Sega Studios where girls met with artists, designers, programmers, and musicians. They were also treated to a mock employee orientation, an overview of Sega's organization, and a special picnic lunch. The highlight was a brainstorming session in which the participants designed game ideas and marketing strategies.

Founding Growth

The event was organized by the Sega Foundation and reflects Sega's ongoing commitment to expanding girls' access to and interest in interactive technology.

"Technology is not gender specific," said Tom Kalinske. "Contrary to popular belief, girls are very interested in technology. And, as an entrance into technology, video games are the path of least resistance. They are a fun way to interact with computers."

The Sega Foundation was the premier sponsor of the event through a grant to the Hollywood Policy Center, a group dedicated to promoting women's rights in the entertainment community.

MGM and Sega of America Join Forces to Create Interactive Media Titles, Movies, and Television Programs

Hollywood and the high-tech corridors of Silicon Valley are getting closer and closer to each other each day. Sega of America and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (MGM) have agreed to jointly create a line-up of interactive media titles, television programs, and motion pictures. The two entertainment giants will collaborate in the development, production, and marketing of new media products.

Products resulting from the deal will be released under both the MGM and Sega names. Although products to be developed will be new and original concepts, Sega and MGM may also develop interactive games based on upcoming 1995 and 1996 movie releases from both MGM Pictures and the United Artists Pictures units of MGM.

In the first year of the agreement, the two companies plan to develop at least two interactive CD-ROM titles for release. Executives from MGM Pictures, United Artists Pictures, and Sega are already collaborating on new game concepts for the Sega CD platform.

MGM is involved in worldwide production and distribution of motion pictures and television programs through MGM Pictures, United Artists Pictures, MGM Worldwide Television, MGM/UA Distribution, and MGM/UA Home Entertainment, among others.

Sega Selects Acclaim as First Company to Use Titan Technology

Sega tapped Acclaim, the powerhouse third party that brought you Mortal Kombat and NBA Jam on Genesis, as the first US software developer to use Sega's proprietary "Titan" technology to create games for Sega's high-end hardware systems. Look for new Acclaim releases on coin-op arcade, Genesis 32X, and a yet-to-be-introduced hardware platform, code-named "Saturn." (More about THAT in future issues of Sega Vision.)

"Titan" is a code name for Sega's new high-performance arcade video-game system hardware. "Titan" incorporates three of Hitachi's most advanced 32-bit RISC chips, resulting in advanced 3-D computer graphics and ultra-realistic audio. The really big news is that the technology in "Titan" makes it possible for arcade-game programmers to easily transfer a title to other home hardware platforms that use Hitachi's SH series of RISC chips.

The first release published under the agreement will be based on the soon-to-be-adapted major motion picture Batman Forever, the third title in the blockbuster Batman series.

Acclaim, the company that brought you Mortal Kombat and NBA Jam on the Genesis, is teaming up with Sega to create a new generation of coin-op arcade and home-video games.

Under the agreement, Acclaim will develop coin-op arcade titles utilizing both Sega's "Titan" hardware-system technology and Acclaim's award-winning motion-capture technology.

Acclaim has been getting a lot of industry recognition for its advanced motion-capture technology. The process combines scanning, traditional modeling, and a proprietary optical motion-capture process. "Duel," a visual demonstration of the company's technology, received a specially created award at Nitegraph 93, Japan's largest annual computer-graphics and interactive-visualization techniques conference. The award recognized Acclaim as "breaking ground" with this hot new technology. Acclaim is hard at work building a New York-based motion-capture facility, which is scheduled to be up and running this summer.

Yo Sega!

Channelling Sega

Yo Sega!
In your June/July issue I read that a Sega Channel was coming to cable fall '93. It's the New Year and I haven't heard anything about it. What happened?

L.C., Lorain, OH

Yo Sega!
How do you subscribe to the Sega Channel? B.W., Bradenton, FL

The Sega Channel has arrived, and Sega Vision's has the scoop! Check out all the info on the world's only 24-hour game channel! The feature-length look at this gaming breakthrough starts on page 14.

Can't See the Level For the Letters

Yo Sega!
What does "WELCO METOT HENEX TLEVEL" mean?
J.S., Inver Grove Heights, MN

Think of it as an eye chart. If you can read it, your Sega Vision is 20/20 and you can see the Next Level in gaming.

Beyond CD Gaming

Yo Sega!
Hello! My husband and I bought our four children a Sega Genesis and CD player. We have been very happy with the system except for a lack of educational games and the possibility of upgrading the system. Are there any plans to make the Sega system more versatile?
M.H., Mattawan, MI

Several educational titles are already coming out for the Sega CD, including My Puma and The Animals (both reviewed in the VideLife section of this issue). Other titles under development include multimedia reference libraries and early learning games. As for upgradability, the Sega CD will benefit from the amazing 32-bit power unleashed by the Genesis 32X. Get the details on page 96.

I Want My RPG

Yo Sega!
I have owned a Genesis since the system came out here in the states. I got a Sega CD the first Christmas it was out. I have been a loyal fan all these years and I usually write to you with fan mail, but today the situation is different. I have a complaint that I'm sure you have already heard and will hear again. All the Genesis and Sega CD owners that I know of feel the same way that I do. WE NEED MORE RPGS!!!!!! You allowed Working Designs to make Lunar, and let me tell you, from what I've seen it's out-selling everything you've got on the market. I went to seven stores to buy it and it was completely sold out in six of them. I IMPLORE you. Make and allow more RPGs!!!!
D.J., Columbia, TN

Yo Sega!
I just finished completing Lunar for the Sega CD and enjoyed every minute of it. I found the game to be a surprisingly giant advancement from Genesis Role-Playing games. It was one of the best RPGs I've ever played. However, I was disappointed to see that Sega CD had no other true RPGs out at the time. Could you tell me if any RPGs that will be out for the Sega CD soon?
S.F., Hazel, NJ

Yo Sega!
I recently played the Role-Playing game Shining Force and found it so interesting that I bought it. I love every aspect of the game, from the variety of adventures to choose from down to the action sequences. This game is the best RPG I've ever played. Please tell me there's a sequel on the way.
L.E., Long Island, NY

Take heart, RPG fans. There's a whole crop of great Role-Playing epics out there, waiting for Sega Genesis and CD gamers to take up the sword and spellbook. Shining Force II is coming to Genesis and Game Gear, and we've got it covered (see page 48). You'll also find a review of Vay, the awesome new CD RPG from Working Designs (page 44). If that's not enough, CD players can also stork their awards into Dark Wizard from Sega, Dungeon Master: Skulldeep from JVC, and Eye of the Beholder from FCI. And Sega gamers can even expect a new game in the celebrated Phantasy Star series this fall.

Sounds Like a Good Idea

Yo Segal

I think that you should start making soundtracks of your video games. I know it's a crazy idea, but whenever my friends and I play we always say, "The sound on this game is really good." We always try to tape the music, but it never works. It's just an idea.

T.J., El Cerrito, CA

Demand for video game music has been on the rise. Story turned to these pages for future music releases from your favorite video adventures. In the meantime, check out the ad for a new all-game soundtrack CD from Virgin elsewhere in this issue.

What Price Visions?

Yo Segal

In one of your issues a person asked how to get a subscription to Sega Visions, and you told them that they had to just send in the cards they get when they buy a new game. My question is, how come on the bar code on the front of the cover it says the date and price?

B.L., Coolidge, CA

Sega sends a free six-month subscription to new customers who register their hardware or software (while supplies last, that is). After that, readers have the opportunity to subscribe for the best available price at the time (usually about 15 bucks). The cover price is used when the magazine is sold on newsstands. Readers who want to subscribe to Sega Visions can get the latest price and subscription info by calling 800-288-5310 (Canadian readers, please call 800-363-0090).

Looking for a Good, Clean Fight

Yo Segal

I would love to see a clean fighting game, unlike Street Fighter or Mortal Kombat. I would like to see a game with kicking and punching, secret moves, and all that but without all the junk that's in all the fighting games today. Instead of killing the poor guy, play until you knock the guy out. Then you could have birds or even stars flying around his head. He could be waving around, and the person who had won could push him over with one finger or blow on him so that he falls over.

C.S., Boise, ID

Sega plans to introduce several "clean" fighting games between now and Christmas. The first is already here, in fact. Check out the review of Streets of Rage III on page 62. This side-scrolling slam-fest features all the secret moves and nonstop action you could ask for without all the unsightly blood 'n guts. Look for other titles in upcoming issues of Sega Visions.

Mean, Green, and On Your Machine

Yo Segal

I would like to know why there isn't an Incredible Hulk video game? I think he deserves one like any other superhero.

H.M., Philadelphia, PA

You're right. The Hulkster now has his own adventure, on both Genesis and Game Gear, thanks to the folks at U.S. Gold. Not only that, but you can also win big prizes in the Sega Visions/Incredible Hulk contest in this issue. The fun starts on page 88.

The Sega Channel Is Coming to Your Television

Imagine how great life would be if you could turn on your TV and choose a game from a list of 50 great Genesis titles, 24 hours a day. Imagine taking the newest, hottest games for a spin a month before they hit the stores. Imagine playing games that aren't sold or rented in any store and not available anywhere else — ever. Imagine getting super secret tips, hints, and codes right on your TV screen. Imagine having access to late-breaking news on all the games under development.

Stop imagining. The Sega Channel is here.

It's like having Sega's fun right into your TV, 24-hours a day.

Get the latest game news during the quick load-in period.

Hot New Games. Served 24 Hours a Day

The Sega Channel is the ultimate game experience for Genesis owners. Using a special cable TV adaptor that plugs into your Genesis, you can have up to 50 games delivered to your home each month. Play as long as you want, 24 hours a day, for one low monthly charge.

Sega teamed up with Time Warner, the world's leading media and entertainment company, and TCI, the world's largest cable company, to bring this gaming extravaganza to life.

More Games. More Tips. More Previews

Games featured on the Sega Channel will run exactly the same as their cartridge counterparts, complete with codes, peripheral support, and multi-player capability. In addition to these great games, though, you'll also be able to test-drive games before release and tap into special hint programs and video game news.

"Previews of new games and game-play hints are the most important features for our audience," says Michael Sheroock, vice president of programming, "and we can deliver them big time."

The games and previews offered on the channel will also change constantly, according to Sheroock.

"Seventy-five percent of the titles offered will change each month because demand for new games is so high and because the Genesis library is over 500 titles strong," he says. "With more than 250 new games being added each year, we will deliver a steady stream of first-rate, first-run, first-thrill games to Sega fans."

Coming to Your Cable Company This Fall

The new all-game channel is being tested in 12 cities right now and will roll out nationally late this fall. More than 27 million subscribers will have access to the channel at launch. Call your local cable company to find out how you can sign up.

The Sega Channel gives you every kind of game, plus news and tips.

The Categories, Please!

Games on the Sega Channel will change monthly, but here are the categories you can expect to see:

"Passwords for Parents" Program Offers Game-Play Control

With the constantly changing line-up of killer games being delivered by the Sega Channel each month, some parents might worry that younger kids will have access to inappropriate titles.

No problem.

The Sega Channel features a special password program that lets parents lock out games, requiring the player to enter a special code before gaining access to games rated for older players. On-screen prompts let the parent create an individual code, then select which ratings can be accessed with and without the code.

The Videogame Rating Council ratings currently used on Sega titles will be used on the Sega Channel. Every game offered will carry a rating, even those published before the rating system went into effect.

The Sega Channel Programming Guide

Here's a look at the line-up for the first month of the Sega Channel. Remember, the programming changes every month, so expect the latest, greatest, most outrageous games when the Channel kicks your butt.

Classic Firepower

Gunstar Heroes is set on the strange-but-cool planet of Gunstar II, where characters are named after colors and the enemies after food-color combinations. In one area you go hand to hand with a character named Curry and Rice, who could very well beat the clowder out of you.

Gunstar is awesome as a one-player title. But the mayhem takes on global proportions when two players throw down on the bad guys. The game begins with four levels that you can take in any order, followed by an intense space battle against the major bosses, then a final grand-slam confrontation against all the major enemies in all-new death-dealing machinery. In addition to phenomenal weapons, you can use a variety of kick and slide attacks, plus sling your partner into oncoming enemies with no damage to yourselves.

OVERVIEW

Some people get turned on by a nice, quiet game of chess. Well, they ain't gonna like Gunstar Heroes from Sega. This one- or two-player, action-crammed blastfest is becoming a modern cult classic with gamers who like their play loud, fast, and furious. Loaded with anime-style, razor-sharp graphics and killer sound, Gunstar pours on the action in relentless waves of armored enemies—which you must blast, smash, and pound using a variety of high-octane weapon combinations and slick martial arts maneuvers.

Gunstar's Big Bad Bosses

Here are just a few of the laser-blasting horde of bosses found in every level of Gunstar Heroes.

The Ancient Ruins

Brevo Men is easily foiled with a long burst of fire.

Pinky Number has two weak spots: the long arm and the cab.

The Underground Mine

This birdlike formation will try to grind you against the vertical walls. Double-press to change walls and avoid crashing down.

The Underground 7-Force boss has seven battle forms. This one has a long, long reach.

Now get ready to be sliced, diced, and saved into jellatinous bits.

Ready for a little cut and reuse? One of the last formations will chase you like a dog.

The Flying Battleship

The Sopping Keg is a real stonker. Get directly underneath and blast straight up.

Don't feel on the flying machine and you have to go up against George.

Black's Strange Fortress and Dice Palace

Wicked game! Before you can take on Black's mean machine, you have to roll the die through his 17-room dice palace. And you thought Vegas was a weird place...

Each throw of the die moves you further into the Dice Maze.

Black's Real Shmoper is a wall-crawling lool.

All the way back to the beginning.

GAME Feature

He's coming to your Sega Genesis soon.
But that's just the beginning!

Earthworm Jim Is Going To Slime The Whole World

Honest: The next really big video game/TV/comic character—bigger than those pizza-chomping turtles, bigger than those mighty morphing knuckleheads—might—just might—be a common earthworm with a superpumped suit from off in the stellar boondocks. You heard it here first, so you owe us, OK?

Earthworm Jim from Playmates is your average, everyday slug who discovers a robotic suit, a plasma gun, and a pet named Snott. He's also the first creation from Shiny Entertainment, a hot new studio that boasts some of the biggest talent in the video game industry.

Jim's adventures are coming to the Genesis this summer from Playmates, but that's just the beginning. According to David Perry, president and founder of Shiny, several major TV and film companies have already approached him about turning Earthworm Jim into a regular animated feature. Some of the biggest names in Hollywood are just itching to sign on as the voice of this slimy sepecher.

Check out Jim's origin and his amazing cast of cohorts and enemies, and you'll understand why.

Jim can use his suit, but the suit can also use him. Snott uses the suit as a whip, a weapon, or a helicopter blade.

It Jim stands in one place too long, his head goes back into his suit and reappears as something totally different.

When the folks at Shiny designed Earthworm Jim, they drew a comic strip instead of creating a traditional storyboard.

The Supercondensed Version of Earthworm Jim's Amazing Origin

Somewhere in space, an intergalactic chase is soaring its glorious finale. An interstellar bounty hunter and all-around loose louse named Pay-Crow blasts a small ship to smithereens. The ship's cargo, an indestructible robotic suit, plummeted to Earth, where it lands on top of an ordinary earthworm named Jim.

Jim's soft, squishy, silky flesh interacts with all the cosmic heebie-jeebies of the suit. He swells to man size (well, more like Schwarzenegger size).

Jim finds he has incredible strength and powers in his new duds. He also discovers the suit has infinite internal space, so he can stuff everything from a plasma gun to a baby grand inside it.

Jim thinks he's got it made until he discovers that Pay-Crow is hot on his trail.

Shiny News Nugget #2

All but one of the people at Shiny worked on the amazing Madden Genesis game. The animation processes that made Aladdin a visual feast have been taken another step for Earthworm Jim's adventures.

Shiny News Nugget #3

Doug Tenfelde, Earthworm Jim's creator, headed up the Amnesia Park Genesis team for Sega. Though Doug created the character back in his comic book days, he says the story for this game (and the crazed characters it contains) sprang from the collective talents of the entire Shiny team.

Shiny News Nugget #1

Shiny was founded by David Perry, the producer and programming genius behind Disney's Aladdin for the Sega Genesis. A native of Ireland, David began programming games on a 1K Sinclair computer and became a leading force in the English video game community before coming to America.

Shiny News Nugget #4

The name Shiny came from the R.E.M. song "Shiny, Happy People," which the team played constantly during their many adventures on Madden. One of the dictionary definitions of shiny by the way, is "highly polished."

Advanced animation and art techniques make Earthworm Jim's adventures a visual treat.

MEET THE CHARACTERS

Earthworm Jim's world is filled with an outrageous cast of monsters, mutants, and generally bizarre beings. Here's a few:

SHOOT Jim's pet who lives in his backpack. Secret codes will allow Shoot to mutate into all sorts of useful and disgusting things during fights.

EVIL THE CAT So evil, in fact, he has his own prison planet named Heck.

PSY-CROW: Intermediate psychic power with the evil range of the crypts.

Shiny News Nugget #6
Half of the Shiny team is British and half is American. So what, huh? Yes, these News Nuggets can't all be important.

QUEEN PULSATING, BLOATED, FESTERING, SWEATY, PUS-FILLED, MALFORMED, SLUG-FOR-A-BUTT Well, her name just about says it all. Oh yeah, she breeds and controls all the insects in the universe. Her body is an entire level of the game.

When the team designs a new level, everyone is asked to contribute ideas and sketches on what it should include.

"We're trying to get everyone to think in a twisted direction," says Doug TenNapel, acknowledging that they often have to twist the imaginations of the programmers scene, while untwisting the imaginations of the animators a bit.

MAJOR MUSCLES A good, good drill extractor-type on a planet where all living things eventually turn to sand. Stay there too long, and you'll be sand too. We want you to stay just long enough to get the job well and done.

CHUCK AND FUL This pair runs the giant Jontyford that makes up the first level of the game. Chuck is a big lumbering rick and Ful is a rabbit, totally unrelated guy who eats trash.

PETER-PUPPY A lovable little pooch who turns into a rickshaking wonder at the least canonical tunes.

When Richard Skille, president of Playmates Toys, met David Perry at the Consumer Electronics Show, he could tell that David's plans for a new software company fit in perfectly with Playmates' plans for video game development.

"We simply wanted the best," said David Laehmann, executive producer for software development at Playmates. "David's group is clearly the best of the best."

Perhaps best known for introducing the world to Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles toys, Playmates has the kind of marketing muscle and distribution power a developer like Shiny needs to successfully launch a character like Earthworm Jim. Playmates was key in forming the new studio and helping finance the startup. They helped create a state-of-the-art game-development facility where programmers and animators went for nothing.

"Playmates is like a big brother to us," said Perry. "They protect us from the big, mean world and open our eyes to all these new opportunities."

Playmates sees all sorts of possibilities for Earthworm Jim, according to Luehmann, including a toy line, a Saturday morning cartoon, and maybe even a movie.

"Shiny has created fantastic characters," he said. "They're the sort of ideas marketing people can really grab onto and run with."

We actually wrote only six News Nuggets. Oh, five and a half.

PRINCESS WHAT'S-HER-NAME Hey, get this! The game has a princess in it! And she's in trouble! And you have to rescue her! Wow, how do they come up with this stuff?

PROFESSOR MONKEY-FOR-A-HEAD The mentally tortured genius who invented Earthworm Jim's amazing suit. His human and worm sides wage a continual battle for control of the body. On these occasions when the monkey wins, the character's name is changed to MONKEY-PROFESSOR-FOR-A-HEAD.

New Wheel of Fortune and Jeopardy Games Challenge Players on Every Platform

Admit it. Deep down, you know you're soooooo much smarter than all those cheeseheaded contestants that somehow manage to make it to the Double Jeopardy round (where the stakes are doubled and you can play for really big prizes). Play follows the TV format. You can take on animated opponents (real or computer) through three rounds, leading up to the final Bonus Wheel. Each round ups the value of the wheel and adds prizes like trips, jewelry, and surprises.

Smooth animation, superb sound, and the on-screen MC work of Vanna make this a delightful, faithful re-creation of the popular game. Spin or solve, earn! Big money, big money!

Sharp shooting is a must in this arcade classic where the player must save the town, rescue the mayor and his daughter, and triumph in a final showdown against Mad Dog himself!

It's the Roiling '30s and someone has killed popular singer Johnny Rock in this action-packed gangster whodunit. A Bird in The Paw...

Hello Breakfast!

You've seen these two before? OK. So you haven't been hiding under a rock while this dynamic cat and bird duo has been making the world laugh for the last 40 plus years. The ever-popular Sylvester and Tweety are back, this time starring in their own Genesis game. Sylvester still seems to think that he's going to get breakfast on the wing, and Tweety is gonna have a great time changing his mind.

To get an extra life at the end of the Mayhem Express level, let the gigantic mouse play kick-the-cat to get back up too before collecting your flying saucer, and tilt off the top right of the cat.

Avoid the BBQ. Grilled cat does not a happy Sylvester make.

I Taw! I Taw a Puddy Tat

Playing as Sylvester, your goal is to get your hands, er, paws on the yellow fellow. Each level is a chase over the landscape to find Tweety in each of his hiding places and move him forward. At the end of every level you catch the bird and move on to the next stage.

Along the way, you'll be cat-apulated by a really big mouse (Baby kangaroo) named Hippety Hopper, play cat burglar on the outside of apartment buildings, con up in trash cans, and catwalk the inside of test tubes in a lab. You attempt to out-smart mainstay characters from Looney Tunes cartoons, like Granny (a sweet little old lady who swings like Barry Bonds), Spike (a lovable bulldog who thinks he's a boxer), The Red Cat (obviously a traitor to his species), and the Tweety Monster (he got into the Hyde potion and wants to floss his teeth with your tail).

Use the Scratch to turn off any switches you see. You may not know what it is you're just powered down, but you can be sure that you've furthered the cat's crazy cause.

OVERVIEW

Sufferin' succotash! The age-old chase between foolish feline and savory songbird continues in Sylvester & Tweety in Cagey Capers from Time Warner Interactive for the Genesis. The bad of' puddy tat still wants some Tweety pie for lunch and is willing to go through any indignity to get it. This seven-level, one-player comic fun-fest features an ongoing chase through places like Granny's house and backyard, a speeding train, an alley, a mad scientist's lab, and an ocean liner. How tough could catching a little bird-brain be? Cat-astrophically hard, of course.

PUBLISHER: Time Warner Interactive

Jenifer may be embarrassed by his father's lozies but he's still out there reading her dear old dad. Follow his pointing paw to find the tasty Tweety treat.

Use the Hoppies to get the dog with the tail on once or two of bones.

In the double-decker buncers, one arm is so windy that it'll seem that you can't get there. Use your tools to move on the edge of the opening and you'll clean up. Goodies galore.

SYLVESTER AND TWEETY CAGEY CAPERS

Merry Melodies, Looney Tunes, and Great Noises

You'll note from the screens that Sylvester & Tweety looks just like the cartoons. So how are the sounds? From the front end you've got that cut-chyke with The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down—the Looney Tunes theme song. Each level's tune manages to be fun and cartoony—from mad scientist music in the Hyde and Shrek stages to Chicago Blues-style tunes in Back Alley Blues. The voices are straight-dipped Sylvester and Tweety, and are great comedy in themselves.

Make like a member of the fellow freight movers' union. Sticking stuff leads to snacking stuff.

Hopety Hopper is what Sylvester would call a...gale...really his name. He'll help you attain extra altitude.

Cat Stalkers

The infamous Red Cat doesn't desire to call himself a member of the fellow species. Whomp him with the Mallet or he sees stars, or loss him a Fish.

Poor Spike...always letting his testicles get the better of him. Here boy, here boy, get the bone...Jerk!

Gummy always tries to make a clean sweep of her dog. Keep the pudgy cat off the wire.

These rob of dogs can be bashed into smithereens or talked into a brainy game of fetch. Just watch their teeth. Meowch.

Every cat's nightmare—being eaten by your prey. Scratch your way out of the Tweety Monster's big gut or loss him some Scratch Poles.

Stage Props

Here, kitty, kitty! Does the less-than-smart kitty want a nice fish?

The Umbrella will keep you from bashing Sylvester's poor little head.

Play fetch with Spike and the Robot Dogs. Toss 'em a Bone.

Wonder what the A is for on the back of Sharky Peabody? We at Sega Visions are betting it stands for Antidote.

Cats may be good natural jumpers but can really achieve extra altitude with the use of a Power Stick. Offer one to your cat sometime... and it's gone.

Stack stuff to reach the soon-to-be-squirrel, Sylvester.

Sylvester hates electricity. Mutes the problem, buddy kid?

It's windy as heck here today. Run, boy, run. See Sylvester sprint. See Sylvester catch supper.

Use these Springs to launch our fearless hero.

Find the Power Stick in the third train car to get the height you need to reach the dining car. Seems appropriate. Dining car. Get the old salvia glands running, ne?

NOTES

- ✓ You must have an 81 percent difficulty setting to be able to play all the levels.
- ✓ Use the Umbrella when falling from any real height.
- ✓ When taking on any of the cat-stalker characters, like Spike, remember to collect any stage props you've already used again (they come back). You never know when you'll need to throw the big bad dog a bone.
- ✓ Scratch at Tweety constantly. Every time you get flying feathers you collect 20,000 points. Every 100,000 points is an extra life.
- ✓ Use the Twenty Scope. In addition to finding Tweety, you'll learn what's between you and him.
- ✓ You can't hit Garing — you should be ashamed of even thinking of it! You either outrun her or find a place to conceal your scrawly, flea-bitten hide.

Power-Ups

The Super Hero Suit makes the player invincible for a short time.

Use Hiding Places like the Cat Red and the Trash Can to evade those who would stop you on your quest for the yellow spark.

Cases of Tuna increase Sylvester's energy. Nowhere on the can does it say dolphin-safe, though.

Ah, the heralded 1-Up! These add to your existing nine lives.

The Clock gives you two minutes off your existing play time. The shorter the time played on each level, the higher your bonus.

Hidden Room in Back Alley Blues

Go left, young cat, go left.

Open an Umbrella and use your D-Flash to land on the tiny ledge between buildings.

Hounds on the Roostle of the top of the leftmost building.

1-Ups are a great way to get around that stupid nine-lives rule.

Key! You're inside the building! Look, Tuna, Tuna.

Enter Dexter the Space Ace. He might have ignored Bort's dictatorial delusions if the big oaf hadn't kidnapped luddily Kimberly—Ace's gal. Now Ace is gonna rescue Kimberly, destroy the Infanto Ray, and save the world (or need a pacifier real soon). No problem, Right?

Ace got hit by the Infanto Ray. But not the nappies.

In this scene, our hero tries to avoid being stuffed.

The Bluth and Nothing but the Bluth

Space Ace has had die-hard fans clamoring for a home version for years. The animation and sound quality of the laser disc arcade version was unparalleled. Getting the Don Bluth classic to your home system has only just become possible with the recent technical advances in compression (and your Sega CD, of course). As you react to the attacks that aggravate Ace, you get to enjoy Bluth's original art and terrific character animation. Add CD-quality sound, and you have a sensational home version of the original play experience.

Bort screams like a madman, huh? Is the head attack.

You (as Ace) get plenty o' fun with a laser gun.

Not just anyone gets his very own "space" craft.

Meet Ace and his significant other, Kimberly.

OVERVIEW

Addictive animated arcade action is the name of the game. Even better, you (lucky Sega Visions reader) get an early look at Space Ace from ReadySoft for the Sega CD. Following in the footsteps of the blockbuster hit Dragon's Lair, this one-player arcade classic Action/Reaction game is certainly gonna get you hopping. You'll be cheering and groaning at Dexter's exploits as he tries to save the earth from an extra-evil (and lots of fun) cartoon villain.

Deeper into Jurassic Park

Prehistoric Terror in 3-D

The game picks up where the movie left off, with the dinosaurs loose and wreaking havoc in the ill-fated theme park. You're a scientist sent to salvage eggs of seven dinosaur species before Jurassic Park is completely destroyed. All your adventures take place in 3-D first-person perspective. Add 3-D QSound™, and you've got a terrifyingly realistic mission ahead of you. But one step at a time: Let's explore the Triceratops area.

Triceratops Territory

First, a little background on your quarry. Triceratops are meadow-dwelling herbivores, which means they won't make a meal of you. Now for the bad news: They weigh six tons, and they're quite a bit faster than you. You don't want to be in the way when they charge. They're also fiercely protective of their family. Yes, that includes eggs.

Oh, a couple more problems. Old rhino-face isn't the only dinosaur you're up against in the Triceratops plain. And then there are all those locked rooms, hidden tools, and secret codes. So follow our step-by-step guide to retrieving an egg. And hope for the best.

NOT HINTS

- ✓ Turn the sound up and listen carefully for dino cries and footsteps.
- ✓ Stop at the Dinosaur Field Kiosk for crucial info on your quarry.
- ✓ Whenever you enter a new area, make a quick 360-degree check for dinosaurs.
- ✓ Save your game whenever you're in the Visitors Center.
- ✓ Press Start to assess your dinosaur egg collection.

OVERVIEW

Face it. You're obsessed with Jurassic Park. You saw the movie the weekend it opened. You ate up Sega Visions' early coverage of the Sega Genesis, Game Gear, and CD games. Now you're ready to master the CD version of this Action/Puzzle blockbuster level by level. We'll help you out with an in-depth look at the Triceratops area, but be warned: Collecting that egg ain't easy, even with a guided tour.

Step-by-Step Guide Retrieving a Triceratops Egg

Examine the tree and snap off a branch. Then head to the jeep.

Hook the horn to startle the Triceratops. The instant it faces you, hook again. When the Triceratops bumps the jeep, pick up everything that falls out as fast as you can. Hook once more, and grab the injector when it falls out of the jeep. Act fast, or you'll get splattered.

Use the foliage to distract the bulky Triceratops.

Open the metal box with your crowbar. Grab the Triceratops crowbar inside.

Highlight it in the pump room, and use the injector on the sick Triceratops outside. Return to the grazing plain.

When Low Tech Meets High Tech

We don't advise smashing the computer with the rock. But if you must, save your game first.

Return to the Visitor Center. Go upstairs and use the cardkey to open Muldoon's office. Open the cabinet. Take the Gas Gun and the ammunition bottle.

Get first aid if you need it, and save your game.

Play the Triceratops CD on the machine next to the computer. Then press the Reveal Code button. Memorize the combination.

Return to the pump building, open the door with your cardkey, and — quick! — gas the Rhinos before they spew green stink at you.

Shoot all the gas with the remote. Then open the refrigerated locker and hit the power supply. Open the other lockers, collecting whatever goodies you find. When you find the combination keypad, enter the code from the CD.

Place the gas on the incubator.

Get the night-vision goggles from the cabinet in Muldoon's office.

Use the first aid if you need it, examine the cabinet, and retrieve the Brachiosaurus CD.

Finally, move your missions on the computer in the control room, and save your game.

Aerial Combat at Mach 2

OVERVIEW

This cat has fangs — its teeth'll bite the tail off a MIG-27 at 128 miles nautical. Since it shipped, Sega's Tomcat Alley, for the Sega CD, has been a big hit with critics and gamers alike. So we're giving you another look at this terrific one-player full-screen Interactive Movie. You get seat No. 2 as Radar Intercept Officer on an F-14X Tomcat fighter. You make all the navigation and targeting calls — it's your talent that drives a Sidewinder up the tail of an enemy bogie, and it's your failure that has you chewing churro if you're lucky enough to punch out after taking a hit.

PUBLISHER: Sega
CONTROLLER: 3-button

PLAYERS: 1

Doing the Tomcat Strut

Tomcat Alley leaves the flying to your ace fighter jock, Dakota. You get to concentrate on the easy stuff, like trying to lock on to the heat signature of a tail-wagging MIG at 8 mach. Release your bird before you get lock, and he'll likely be crawling up your six and trying to turn your strutting Tomcat into uranium target. This game is all

A psycho named Col. Alced Povich has stolen two MIG squadrons, some SU-138 bombers, a parcel of SAMs, and some nasty radioactive and chemical warfare goodies. He's holed up out in the Mexican desert, with the US of A in striking distance. All you have to do is fly missions from your top-secret subterranean base, take out his fighter air cover, dance and stretch your way through his SAM gauntlet, and destroy his chemical weapons facility. There is one other thing you might do — that's die trying.

The Cast

Mr. Williams is a shadowy suit-type.

Lt. Fujimura gives you mission info.

Col. Remington is your CO

Buzz is your counter-part on Shadow 2

Ratchet is the jockey for Shadow 2.

Dakota is your fighter driver.

Screw up in the later missions by letting Buzz and Ratchet get splashed, and it's over.

about decision making at speed. You spend your narrow decision windows choosing between missile types at mach 2, releasing flares and chaff before you become a high-altitude fireball, taking recon photos between dogfights, and targeting ground installations while dodging SAMs (surface-to-air missiles).

When you're at a launch without a lock, you get to see the missile launch at nothing. Ergo, that missile might have been the difference between failure and success. Treat each one like gold — they're worth their weight in it. Literally and figuratively.

Spook the bomber in the first stage with a radar-guided missile.

Be accurate selecting your waypoints. Otherwise you'll be a target immediately upon drop.

Looks like JPS (jet fuel) and high explosives (Jerg) don't mix. Good hit.

If you miss a waypoint or a red dot, try not selecting the icon within five seconds. Dakota gets on your case. Then you get three more seconds before the mission is scratched.

Select the heat seekers to get the bogies that are close in. Lock on and wait 'em.

When dealing with SAMs, target only the ones that are moving slowly across the screen. Use your countermeasures against the rest. Miss an emplacement, and you're flamed.

Use bombs on the bridge. The way to hit the bridge is to place your reticle at the foot of the screen (below the left half of the bridge) and wait for the bridge to nearly reach the reticle before letting 'em drop.

HOT HIRIS

- ✓ When saving your wingperson's butt, always choose a Phoenix Long Range Air-to-Air Missile. This one's radar-guided. Select a heat seeker and it may target the wrong heat source. Oops.
- ✓ Run out of flares/chaff and have a missile targeted at you? Rapidly vector toward another hostile by choosing it with your reticle. It's a 50/50 chance of survival.
- ✓ Can't seem to lock on with a heat seeker? Quickly choose a radar-guided instead.
- ✓ Don't get sloppy when choosing a target vector with your reticle. If you aren't on the money, you'll often drop in front of your bandit and he'll be on your six.
- ✓ Rather than chasing a bogie's tail for lock-on, have your reticle where you think he'll go next. Playing catch-up with your sight almost never works 'cause the bandits generally move faster than your reticle.

Tomcat Terminology

Angels: Altitude in thousands of feet; angels two is 2,000 feet up.

Bandit/Bogie: Enemy aircraft (the bad guy).

Flares/Chaff: These two countermeasures are launched to confuse enemy missiles. A flare attracts a heat seeker, and chaff (aluminum strips in varying lengths and widths) confuses radar-guided.

Heat Seeker: A missile that does infrared homing — it's attracted to heat.

Radar Guided: A missile that uses radar to chase and hit aircraft.

Reticle: A grid used to show position on an HUD (heads up display), in this case your cursor.

Six O'Clock: Twelve o'clock is in front of you, three is to your starboard, nine is to your port, and six is directly behind you (never a good place to have an enemy).

Spooks: Shoot down an enemy aircraft (probably related to what happens when they hit the earth).

Tally: Visual sighting of target aircraft — no tally would be no visual, lost tally would be lost visual, and tally hot would be have visual.

When you are out of flares/chaff and an enemy's pointing you, try to vector toward another enemy. You have a 50 percent chance of getting splashed. Get hit, you get to eject — if you're lucky.

Golf Is in The House!

Hip-Hop Tee Time

Virgin has achieved this unlikely but extremely hip mix of sport and cool by taking a well-planned, well-executed golf sim and giving it a multimedia twist with digitized flyover video of each hole, expert commentary and strategy by pros Ben Wright and Steve Elkington, intermission graphics that would make any VJ proud, and a soundtrack that would do well in the Viper Room. None of this should come as a surprise. Virgin Interactive is a sister company to Virgin Records, so some of the greatest tunes in the world are available for their use. And Virgin has proven time and again that they know how to make fun games.

Getting down to the greens, Links has achieved realism both in the presentation of each of the Torrey Pines links and in the four modes of playing them. Whether you practice driving, play each hole individually or in series of nine, or take on Torrey Pines in tournament play, you have complete control over the selection of clubs, your stance on the ball, and whether you wish to fade or draw, chip or putt.

This realism extends to the score of male and female players and even to different tee colors for each player. Features that add to your play include Rotate, which turns your player to face a different direction. This comes in handy if you are facing a tree and a fade or draw is not enough. Top View gives you a bird's-eye view of the link, showing each player's position and other important information, such as yards to the cup. You can even get into fine detail and customize game settings, building your own set of clubs and setting sensitivity. Links has a save feature so you can keep your place in a game, and it gives you options to turn on or off the sound, commentary and flyovers, and replay.

Torrey Pines in San Diego is one of the nation's most challenging golf courses. Other menu screens show you the distance from the ball to the flag, or break your cursor to the flag (an estimating distance).

OVERVIEW

Golf may be one of the most popular sports in the world, but it has never had the excitement or interaction of more active games. Until now. Virgin Interactive Entertainment is changing the way the world golfs with Links: The Challenge of Golf. Even nongolfers are going to find this disc very hot. Think of golf. Now think of house music. Now bring 'em together, and there's only one thing you can say: Golf is in the house! Up to six players can get in on the action at the famous Torrey Pines Country Club South Course in sunny San Diego, California. Use a control pad or a Mega Mouse, or really get in the swing with a Tee V Golf Club. Tournament golf isn't just for the field anymore. Get hip. Play Links on your Sega CD.

Armored and Dangerous

Get Pumped for Mean, Multimedia Role-Playing Action

Grave New World

Compared to Lunar, Working Designs' first Sega CD RPG, Vay is less linear but harder to beat. Although you won't have too much trouble deciding what to do or where to go, getting there will test your RPG abilities down to the last magic point.

The game play begins on difficult and builds quickly, requiring a well-planned mix of

You need two-hand weapons and armor before you head into Danak Castle. The resident orphans can quickly turn you into adventurer stew.

spells and weapons to advance through combat. Finding the armor and orbs takes you through a wide variety of sub-masters through four kingdoms—each with towns containing arms, weapon and armor shops, and item shops. Inns are where you can rest up and restore hit and magic points. Rooms are cheap at first. Cross the sea, and rooms get much more expensive.

The Legendary Armor of Vay has cyborg origins. You want to find it—and upgrade it—to defeat the Danak horde.

OVERVIEW

Sometimes the only way to crush your enemies like seedless grapes is to don a suit of legendary cyborg armor and kick booty. Working Designs is giving you this very opportunity with Vay, their hot new hard-core RPG title for the Sega CD. Featuring digitized voice, animated graphic sequences, and AI combat control, Vay (pronounced like "eye") is a one-player adventure quest to save your kingdom from the evil Danak Empire. The only way is to find the Legendary Armor of Vay and revive it with the Five Orbs of Sealing. And that, young prince, is but one of your goals. The path ahead is long and dangerous, filled with peril and reward. The magicians of the Sealing will oppose you every move.

The SuperMantis is the first big boss you encounter.

More Battle For the Buck

Vay is not an easy game. Plan on getting more than your money's worth of battling and adventuring. The key to steady progress is aggressive play. Run away from tough battles, and you lose the opportunity to earn gold and experience points. You need both to forge ahead.

Increases in levels mean higher hit and magic points, and new spells for mage-type magic users. The increases are well timed and often reward those persistent enough to stick out tough mazes and battle sequences. With some choice weapons costing upwards of 500,000 gold pieces, you need all the gold you can get.

Try, tough bosses abound in Vay. This multilayered nightmare lives in the Ice Tower. When dealing with cold, try fire.

Jaid is the leader of Sadrof's forces. Slaying him kills the dust is one of the more satisfying moments of the game.

Often you'll surprise an enemy and have the attack advantage. You can either strike the first few hours or use the opportunity to run.

NOT HINDS

- ✓ Once you get to the island of Mag-mal, take the ship back to Looath and rest up at the inn before you continue your adventure.
- ✓ Run the game in manual instead of AI when facing tough opponents. You will have more control over which spells you can throw—and when.
- ✓ If you find yourself deep in a structure or dungeon and running low on hit points or magic points, try fleeing ahead. Often you'll advance a level—restoring hit and magic points—before it becomes a dead man's party.
- ✓ The Legendary Armor is not as good without the Orb of Sealing.
- ✓ If someone tells you not to open a chest, don't.
- ✓ The Malybu spell works well against most large groups of enemies, especially when your wizard is carrying a staff.

TAZ Is Back!

And He's Bigger 'n Badder Than Before!

Faster than a whirling dervish, able to bounce up tall chimneys in a single bound—it's not a bird, and not a plane—it's the world's favorite Tasmanian devil in his triumphant return to the Genesis TAZ: In Escape from Mars from Sega. In four times the size of the original, weighing in at a whopping 16 megs. With scads of new tricks, bunches of cameos by old Warner Bros. friends, and a stack of the coolest levels this side of Mars, this one-player cart is gonna spin your doors off. Enjoy the early look...we'll give you full coverage in a coming issue.

Dilly granity is and the reign of the Mars bees.

(Burp) Excuse!

Marvin the Martian is completing his very own personal zoo and has one empty exhibit. Checking out his book of rare earthlings, he sees that a Tasmanian devil would fit the bill and goes out to capture one.

For those who loved the first TAZ-Mars game, there'll be a few familiar things to do. Taz still has an asbestos-lined gullet and gulps Chili Peppers with abandon (though they do cause a little heartburn). He still whirrs to take out his enemies and gets a bit grouchy when made to wait.

Cameo Appearances

Teech that belly fl! Turn a loosey—get out of his way before he collides with TAZ and let his boss hit his bionic brain against the wall.

Play a little tech with E-Z. Just don't let him get TAZ by the tail.

Junkie, unkie, arkie, arkie! Get TAZ to hot-hot it or Speedy will get the Peasap.

Martie and his fastest Martians are wrecking havoc again.

Teach, geebs, Salpiger. Good luck Wile E. You haven't got a chance against Good Homer.

Which Hazel has left her even behind—but she brought the delivery. Look out, TAZ!

Many of you will remember Gossamer and the Mad Scientist. They got their own stage in TAZ 2. Hope you brought your curling iron.

Great! honey heads! Yosemite Sam is blaster critics.

So what's new? Well, there're more than 300 frames of animation for TAZ alone. You can get really BIG by walking through a Grow Ray. Go for a dirty TAZ by hitting the Shrink Ray. Spin TAZ to helicopter around. A whirling TAZ can do loops and even spend some spin-time upside-down. Get the toothsome won't to whirl in dirt, and he bores through like a drill bit.

Hit Spin and launch on the D-Button to power TAZ through sand like a rocket! Hit through balsa wood.

The Green Key creates a little TAZ. Knockle dropping at its best.

Collect this equipment and bring TAZ up to hell itself — he's a TAZ-copter!

TAZ in Escape from Mars on Sega Game Gear!

Not to be outdone by the 16-bit version, TAZ in Escape from Mars for the Game Gear offers the same great play in portable form. TAZ ricochets off walls, burrows through the ground, and speeds around using his famous Tornado Spin. This one-player-to-go version has the same great story line as the Genesis and features amazing Action hijinks. And cameos by other great Looney Tunes characters? Darn right. Here are a couple of sneak screens to get you up to spin early.

Sega Visions Lets the Cat
Out of the Bag on Bubsy II

Bubsy's Back!

In a world where the question "What could possibly go wrong?" begs a list of seriously catastrophic responses, the bobcat with the extraordinary mind and fast feet (or was that ear-numbing mouth and fat feet?) takes on his most purr-plexing adventure yet. Bubsy II, from Accolade for the Genesis, brings new meaning to the term yikes! This one- or two-player (hmm taking) pounce-fest has Bubsy traipsing through the Amazonium with more moves, more stuff, more bonus games, and lots more lip.

Swine Flu and Twin Trouble Too

Oinker P. Spurn is a capitalist boar. This pig sold his own sow of a mother down the river. Got $1.89 a pound, too. So anyway, the greedy son-of-a-swine has snagged Virgil Reality's new invention, the WUNFUM (finghty acronym... it seals likto-ry), and has built a theme park, modestly called the Amazonium.

Our hero with the size 10 ego in a size 2 body has planned to go to the park with his young niece and nephew, the (no, please don't say it) Bubsy Twins. He takes Terry and Terry (they're identical twins!) to the Amazonium and, with typical Bubsy timing, shows up the day before the park opens. Not to be deterred, the adorable twin purveyors of pencil break in and run off. Now of Bubs has to enter the park, find the kids, and save history as we know it.

Just another ordinary day in the life of a very extraordinary, fun-loving bobcat.

Bubsy's back with more levels, more stages, more subgames, and more inspired insanity.

Stuck in a level? Not anymore, you enter 1. Use your Family-Sandy Portable Hole to exit stage left.

Bubsy learns a new high-cameral art: the hollowed throwing of the cream pie!

C'mon, billy boy. Quit acting like a quail.

Play games like Froggipit, in which you launch (willing) frog participants toward targets in a pool. Whoooo!

Bubsy has always hated water (except to drink, and even there he prefers milk). Keep him safe in his new Shing Bath. Ever hear the term "bail the cat"?

Little Bo Peep has lost her sheep and the Scooby little b-a-a-ed boys are attacking Bubsy. Watch out for their dangerous and high-powered Sheat.

Run at bobcat speed into a wall—we dare ya. Look at Bubsy's spinning skull. Little Boar look out. You've got mother' on Bubs.

OVERVIEW

The fearless feline that scratched his way to the top in one of last year's best Action games returns with a whole new look and feel. Now you get to choose from each of the levels at the outset, you get the chance to escape from the level through an emergency exit (an Acme-style Portable Hole), and your bonus stages are great little subgames unto themselves. Collect marbles (yup, he's lost his marbles) and chuck pies at enemies. Some of the early levels seen in our prerelease copy: a pirate theme, an ancient Egypt area, a medieval castle, and a barnstormer stage.

Super Street Fighter II

Genesis Beats SNES Hands Down

So what does the Genesis version of Super Street Fighter II have that the SNES doesn't?

- ✓ How about five degrees of game speed (the SNES has only four)?
- ✓ The Genesis has Normal mode plus an Expert mode that lets you fight all 16 warriors (the arcade, the SNES, and the Normal mode put you up against only 12).
- ✓ The Genesis has a Score Challenge mode that lets players compete to see how many points they can rack up in a 30-second round.

Check out Bl. Blazouk's new Plying Psycho Roll

- ✓ Only the Genesis lets you test your combat technique in a new Point Match in which the speed of each of the victories determines the winner on points.

- ✓ The Genesis version has 40 megs. The SNES has only 32.

Players can expect demo and ending Sequences that are very close to the arcade version (except that you won't have to feed the coin slotter to beat the game and see the ending). Stay tuned to Sega Visions for more feature coverage of this fantastic fist-and-foot fighting frenzy.

Hunting in the Shadows

Shadowrun lets you hit the Seattle Sprawl with a character that suits your style of play. Then you live with the consequences. Play fast and loose with the law and Loonster will be after you in a big way. Stay a little closer to the path of law and order...and you'll only attract their attention once in a while. Murder isn't cool. Anything in the line of self-defense is. Some weapons and tools are tolerated. Others will land you in the clink. Of course, that's not saying everyone else follows the same rules.

Go see a Johnson for a job. The higher the price, the more difficult the run.

But contacts can get you anything...for a price. Equipment and permits. Entry and access. And always information. You're going to need them all if you want to run—and stay alive—in the shadows. And you're gonna need time. Expert gamers might get through Shadowrun in 60 hours. Most gamers can make it in 100 or so. No matter how you play, each moment will keep you on the edge.

Magics gives shamans the ability to fight, defend, and heal. If you play as a shaman, try not to load up on cyberware because it reduces your overall magical abilities.

SHADOWRUN

The Seattle Sprawl has seven distinct areas. Each contains multi-level buildings and maze-like caves. Search the wilderness outside the city and who knows what you will find?

OVERVIEW

Sega is bringing you cyberpunk role playing so real you can almost feel the weight of armor plating embedded under your skin and the itch of the data jack wired to your brain. Shadowrun is a one-player battery-save RPG set in a dark, techno-future Seattle where magic and technology have collided head-on, and human life is traded cheaply. Elves, orcs, and humans walk the dangerous streets. Magic users vie with deckers brainjacked into the vast computer Matrix. You're on a mission to find out who sent your brother on a death run. The giant corporations are covering up. A lot of people want to see you fragged. You're going to have to hunt through the shadows to find out why...or die trying.

PUBLISHER: Sega
CONTROLLER: 3-Button

PLAYERS: 1

Once you've acquired an SMP, you can add "smartgun" accessories that make it easier for you to stay on target.

Get a Job, Chummer!

Your name is Joshua. You're in Seattle, poking into the circumstances surrounding your brother's death. You can drop into the game as one of three characters: a samurai (guns 'n' weapons, charm), a decker (with a data jack wired to your skull for machine hacking), or a Gator shaman (able to use earth's magic). Problem is, you have no Nuyen (money, frag face!), no equipment to speak of, and no rep. You are—in a word—dreck.

Cyberware is implanted in your skin and gives you advantages in strength, speed, and defensive protection.

So what do you do? Get a job. That means becoming a Shadowrunner, someone who lives in the cracks, taking on the dangerous jobs nobody else will touch.

Stick with your brother's best friend. Keep him out of a tight spot and you'll have a runner who would die to help you in return.

You get runs from nefarious characters known as Johnsons. You'll find them... and potential allies in the form of characters for hire...in restaurants and taverns scattered throughout the game.

As you gain a rep, more devious creations—like hellhounds and vampires—will take an interest in you. Return their interest with lead.

NOT HIRIS

- ✓ Don't fall for the old "frag grenades for sale in the alley" trick. Lonestar uses it as a setup.
- ✓ When all else fails, a frag grenade makes a good skeleton key.
- ✓ Make your first financial priority to get Michael's stuff out of lock. Then get better weapons and armor.
- ✓ Buy an Electronics Kit in the Payroll Bazaar Crime Mall. It increases your electronics skill, and it's also much cheaper than a real maglock.
- ✓ Stay out of the real shadows until you have enough strength, skill and firepower to be a survivor.
- ✓ Pay Gunderson his thousand Nuyen to get his contact, especially if you want to make it as a decker.
- ✓ Don't try to Skatze your way into Data Store nodes. You might get in, but you won't be able to skim data.
- ✓ Get data to sell? Go to Seattle.
- ✓ Be a good Samaritan. It pays off more often than not.

Runs range from simple package delivery and bodyguarding to corporate extractions and complex data fixing. Runs earn you Nuyen...providing you don't get washed or ripped-off. Nuyen gets you better weapons, armor, spells, cyberware, and contacts. And a string of good runs gets you a better rep. Which gets you more Nuyen per run, which gets you access to contacts and connections.

It's a long way from the cracks of the street to the ultracool echelons of decker cowboys and streetwise shamans. Getting there is megadun. And if you can find ways to run scams on the side, that's OK too.

Cruising the Matrix

Data is power. It's also worth big Nuyen. Sooner or later, you're gonna have to tap into the Matrix and crash someone's...or some corporation's...CPU. Before you do it you need a data jack (unless you're already a decker). And you need a cyberdeck—a terminal to the Matrix. Don't worry. One will find its way into your hands soon enough. All you need is the software to run it.

This is the map view of the Matrix. Data is stored in square OS nodes. Triangular and round nodes control other functions—usually. Hexagonal nodes are CPUs and sub CPUs. Bent the ICE (Intrusion Countermeasures) on a CPU, and you can control the system for as long as it takes for you to make your run and heist additional data!

Matrix running occurs in first-person. Be sure you have the right abilities loaded before you hit the nodes. Things can get pretty tense when Black ICE frags your attack utility.

When masking succeeds, the true identity of the ICE is revealed.

Next Level? Nope, Next Generation!

24th-Century Space Adventure

You're in a race with the Romulans to find the IFD, a device of incomparable power. But before you can even think about trying your hands out it, you must complete a series of awaysm missions that test your gaming skill, puzzle-solving ability, and role-playing smarts. For each mission, you can choose up to four characters from an initial roster of 19. Assess each character's traits and abilities carefully, then match your line-up to your mission: whether it's rescuing a captured ship, excavating trapped miners, or searching for a Feresagi trader with a Romulan secret.

AWAYTEAM TIPS

- ✓ For perilous sections of awayteam missions, use redheads. If Captain Pboard or any of the Senior Officers are hurt or injured, you lose the game.
- ✓ Split up to cover more ground when searching for clues.
- ✓ In the Mine, collect pellenium and ravanium to avoid a second mission there later in the game.
- ✓ Not all the machinery aboard the Derelict Ship has a function.

Ice World

Divide your party to find the panskeys scattered throughout the level. Keep your phaser ready: Pecky drones and fearsome snow beasts roam the halls. After you've grabbed the panskeys, use them to cross the acidic river. The Shard of Strength lies ahead. Find it, and you're on your way to victory.

One final word of advice: If your character's health meter is low, beam back for a replacement. You can't afford to lose any crew members here.

A Tiger by The Tail

Mowgli's Long Way Home

You play as Mowgli, the man cub. After being found as a baby in a basket by Bagheera, the black panther, you were raised by wolves and grew up to be as comfortable in the jungle as any animal. But now danger — in the form of the man-eating tiger Shere Khan — has returned to the jungle. Your animal friends have decided that the safest thing for you to do is go to the village of men and take up life as a human.

Bagheera is always your ally. Though you fight him elsewhere, here he'll give you a hand...or help...across the river.

Of course, Shere Khan knows there is a man cub in the jungle. And he's more than just a little hungry. So before you can get to the village of men, you'll have to deal with Shere Khan. But on the way to heading the tiger, other dangers lurk as well. Kaa the snake, who can hypnotize with his beady eyes and crush just about anything with his powerful coils. But as the quintessential jungle kid, you have some very nifty tricks up your — ah — sleeve. You can fist-ball a banana that would make No-nan Ryan jealous. Take to the treetops to swing, climb, and hang on vines. Jump and leap with the agility of any monkey. And

Disney's The Jungle Book may have a children's theme, but it's no kid title. As with most good games, the play is easy to learn but difficult to master. Bonus items like fruit or pause-flag elephants are pretty easy to find. Get a compass and you'll always know the direction to the exit. Weapon power-ups like boomerang bananas are more

Hearing a distress call, he borrows Gern on four worlds with wild alien landscapes. The Crystal World is a geometric place full of crystalline lifeforms and toxic waste. Space Port is built entirely of marble and bronze bronze piping, and it's populated by an army of robotic creatures. The Star Hulk is an abandoned ruin of a rushing metallic planet with twisted glaciers and mutants running amok. Insect Planet is full of pyramids and crazed reptiles.

Gadgets, Hidden Rooms, and Star Search

Each of Tinhead's stages has bunches of wild and wondrous gadgets scattered across the landscape to help you find hidden rooms, collect bonuses, find your Lucky Star, and locate the exits. Ride escalators, sail skyward on currents of air from massive fans, bounce on trampolines, use magnets to stick to the ceilings, launch yourself from catapults, and use your vehicles to accomplish your objectives. Use your Bounce Blaster cannon to shred your way through the opposition. Restore the stars by wending your way through each maze-like stage.

OVERVIEW

Up for some galactic pest control across four wild worlds with a friendly little metal-head? Tinhead for the Genesis from Spectrum HoloByte takes you on a one-player alien-ridding journey through 24 stages. Collecting crystal globes, power-ups, and add-on vehicles while extinguishing weird alien creatures, you bounce, shoot, and search your way across the edge of the galaxy. This password-save Action/Puzzle game pits Tinhead against a mad, extraterrestrial goblin in a quest to restore all the stars to the sky. Nothing major, huh?

CONTROLLER 3-Button

At the end of each World you meet its Guardian. This is the Crystal World boss. Avoid his shots and walk on him.

This would be a good time to Pause and look to the right. If you move forward and get hit by a Bubble, you are liable to get splat.

Search carefully in the hidden areas throughout all the stages, as they often contain the better goodies.

Here's the Guardian at Space Port. Take him out.

Vehicles

Hyper-Hopper

Bounce to various new heights on the Hyper-Hopper. This Vehicle helps you get to new areas. You can shoot while bouncing, but take a hit and you lose the Hopper.

Unicycle

Speed is the key to the Unicycle. You can really begin to fly like. Jumping is no kinder than before, but as a result of the speed you can get much more distance. You can still shoot while wheeling about.

Gyrocopter

The Gyrocopter is the best of the various Vehicles. You can control it easily and hover or fly at will. The only rub here is that you cannot shoot while 'xperiens' — instead you must use the blades close in to attack Baddies.

Rocket Pack

Jet your way through the stage with this Rocket Pack. Pushing the Jump button adds height. Shoot while jetting, but be careful as this Vehicle can be tough to control.

Important Items

Batteries

You start out with three Batteries (you can be hit four times before exploding). Collect Batteries to a max of five. Each time you take a hit, you lose one.

Sparks

When you pick up this power, Tinhead's Battery charge automatically goes to it's max of five.

Hearts

Get one of these hard-to-find Hearts and you increase your available lives to one. Search for 'em!

Shots

Tinhead gets only one Shot at the outset. Each Shot Stone collected gives him one, two, or three more Shots, to a maximum of five. The number of Shots he has determines the number of Shots that can be decrease of a time.

HOT TIPS

- ✓ You can jump higher by holding the Jump Button longer. In some areas shorter duration jumps will keep you safe.
- ✓ Learn to use Tinhead's directional shot to take out the Baddies without putting the little metal-head in harm's way.
- ✓ When Paused, you can use the D-Button to scroll the screen in any direction. Do this to avoid obstacles in new regions.
- ✓ You are not on a timer. Be potent and collect everything in sight.
- ✓ Tinhead can't reach some places and items without the use of vehicles. Avoid getting hit and losing the vehicle before you check out those areas.
- ✓ Goodies are always in the same place. As you learn a region, skip collecting items you don't yet need. Go back and get them when they will do you the most good.

You need the Lucky Star to get out each well.

Each time you open a Metallic Orb and find a Question Mark, you'll be transported to a secret Bonus Room. Every round is different...but in short collect all the items and exit before time runs out.

At Sega Visions, we're alarmed to learn that many people are throwing away those old one-color portables. As if our landfills weren't already overcrowded. Just because these outdated toys can't play any really good game titles doesn't mean they're useless. Maybe you could use one for a nightlight. Or shove away all the ancient electronic stuff from the inside and turn it into a really tiny aquarium. Or maybe you could glue a couple on to the bottom of your shoes and tell everybody they're authentic platform pumps from the seventies.

Send us a photo or a drawing of your ideas for recycling these monochrome games and you might win big! If you've already dumped yours, no probs. Just clip out the picture on this page and let your imagination run wild.

Unleashed on Game Gear

The Gaul
of the Roman Empire

Asterix

AND THE GREAT RESCUE

Asterix vs. The Empire

It's 50 B.C., and the Romans have conquered all of Gaul except for your village. What's a loyal countryman to do? Quite a bit, as it turns out. As you progress through Asterix's 30 incredibly diverse levels, you must punch out imperial sentries, ascend invisible stairs, hitch rides on jellyfish, discover the campfire, and stay clear of Romans bearing gifts, among many other things. Four magic potions that you find along the way can help you out, but you have to know when to use

Even a tiny rabbit can inflict damage. No, you shouldn't try to punch it.

Time the rib and flour of the lava tide before proceeding here.

Ray on this button to raise a barrier, then. And you usually have to fight off an enemy or two just to reach the potions.

Of course, one man can hardly be expected to conquer Rome on his own — especially such a tiny guy. That's where Asterix's bontoro-heavy sidekick, Obelix, comes into play. His talents are moving heavy objects and smashing barriers to bits. You have to play as both characters to win the

Rome Wasn't Levelled in a Day

A word to the wise: When in doubt, wait. Take a moment to sniff out enemies in your path, especially those that appear and disappear at intervals. Before moving to a lower level, for example, wait for an arrow to fly by, then jump and run for it before another arrow's shot. And before trying to overtake that dangerous bunny, get a feel for its scampering range. Remember, there's no time limit, and taking an unnecessary hit is positively Galling.

NOT HITS

- ✓ If you come up against a barrier, search for a key to grab or a pad to jump on.
- ✓ Don't linger on the clouds. They dissolve quickly.
- ✓ Always watch out for spikes overhead and underfoot. Sometimes they recede and reemerge.
- ✓ Some platforms disappear or fall, but they always come back if you walk away and then return.
- ✓ Snag every potion. None of them will poison you.
- ✓ Banging your head on a ceiling doesn't count as a hit, but it can slam you out of control on the way down.
- ✓ You can't fire-bomb small animals.
- ✓ Vanquished enemies stay that way if you rebuke your steps.
- ✓ Watch the demo of Level 2 at the front end of the game for more strategy tips.

And sometimes you just have to go with the flow.

game, and it's up to you to decide when to switch from one to the other. Think size.

Even with two heroes, this game is extremely tough. You'll be grateful for the password that you get after completing each level — and for the option to play on Easy mode.

OVERVIEW

Will Rome ever fall? First Asterix took the Empire by storm on the Genesis. Now the pintsize warrior battles imperialism on the Game Gear in Asterix and the Great Rescue, a rollicking one-player Strategy/Adventure game from Sega. And his task couldn't be tougher — Asterix's countless hidden enemies, puzzling pathways, and perilous pits of fire give your wits and your fists a serious workout. It's also mighty entertaining, thanks to the antics of Asterix and friends, the razor-sharp graphics, and a paean of Gallic tunes.

Not a rifle on a jollyish.

If you can't see a way out, maybe the stairs are invisible.

Asterix or Obelix?

So you know that you have to play as both characters to win the game. But which character when? A quick inventory of their talents should help you decide. (To switch characters, press Up and Button 2 at the same time.)

Asterix dodges fire bursts more stylishly than his party pal.

Obelix can pound through bice walls. Hold down Button 2 to wind up his swing, then release.

You have to dash when the spirits reside — Asterix is your man.

You need Obelix's brawn to move these barrels.

Asterix can squeeze himself down to size when the ceiling is low.

Obelix has the brute force to roll the steel ball.

Only Asterix can use potions.

When in doubt, play as Asterix. You never know when you'll need to break into a run.

Tiptoe Through the Tulips

To help you get deeper into Level 3, we're giving you a guided tour of the first sublevel. Just two more tips: make use of all the plant life in this forest, and collect all the potions. You don't need them to get out of the woods, but they'll come in handy later.

Use the blue flower as a stepping stone. Be careful—it sinks when you land on it. Then hop up the cliff.

Jump here for some flower power.

The third flower holds a double dose of fire-breath potion.

Believe it or not, you don't need that fire bomb here—an apocryphal takes care of the guard.

A blue wall. Brrrr on the big guy.

Spring from cloud to flower to cloud, pocketing diamonds along the way.

Knock out this woodpecker before you descend to the next branch. He's throwing arrows down there!

Another fire bomb potion awaits you. Watch your step to the left.

Take up the invisible stairway.

Go out on a limb for an extra life.

Summon your know-how to knock down the wall and pick up the diamonds behind it.

Leap over the letter bunny to grab the end-of-level potion. You're home now.

Your wish is our command. Did you wish for Aladdin on Game Gear™? 'Cause that's what you're getting. You've got the lamp, the magic carpet and Princess Jasmine. Things are good. In fact, the only thing that might worry you—just a little—is that the most powerful and twisted guy in Agrabah wishes you were dead. But you're Aladdin. Don't let it get to you. Have a good time. Visit the Sultan's Palace. Check out the Cave of Wonders. And most importantly, teach Jafar something about the business end of a scimitar.

Dodge flame bursts, burning lava and rocks on your magic carpet. In short—escape the Cave of Wonders before you become a shish kebabs.

It's come to this. Good vs. Evil. You vs. Jafar. Seems like a fair fight? Well, he's got the lamp. Then again, you're Aladdin. You'll figure something out.

He's a cobra. A big cobra. And he's a little upset. Use that scimitar to let him know what's up. (It's the only thing he'll understand, trust us.)

Give this sealhorse an appeal.

Sometimes you have to search high and low to find a golden.

Go left to get the key as your first move in the game. And punch that sneaky guard out of your way.

Watch your step on these platforms — they're anything but stable.

Remove all plants trampled in the spider webs, but don't dilly — they shift under your weight.

Show those scories no respect.

Drink Me

Magic potions are essential to your progress. They let you take shortcuts, evade some enemies, and knock out others. Your inventory can hold three doses of each potion at a time. If you waste those fire bombs or clouds, just retrace your steps and pick up another triple dose.

Ho on a cloud for a lift.

The comestest potion wraps you up in ivy so you can sneak past this ghostly police guard.

Use a fireball to take out any guard not within punching distance.

One shot of the Feather potion gives you more of a boost than the same dose of cloud petals.

Other Power-Ups

The Mega power-up lets you jump in big barrels and also protects you against fire. Drink from the chalice to restore your health completely, chow down on a turkey to recover from one damage hit, and grab a heart for an extra life. But don't get too excited — the one-ups are few and far between.

Hedgehog Pinball on The Go

A Diabolical Contraption

Your mission is straightforward, but it's a challenge: Slam your way through the Veg-O Fortress's Toxic Pools, Lava Powerhouse, and Machine on your way to the showdown with Robotnik. Spin-attack anything and everything while snagging all the rings you can grab. Knock out drop targets to bust open barriers, warp into boss areas, and drain toxic ooze away from precious Power Emeralds. Take some wild rides down chutes, up peyser accelerators, and across dangerously unstable platforms. And don't forget to collect those Emeralds.

OVERVIEW

Desperate for some portable Sonic? The wait is over. The original blue streak slams his way back onto the small screen in all his spiny glory in Sega's Sonic Spinball for the Game Gear. This time Robotnik's set up a robot factory in his Volcanic Veg-O Fortress, and Sonic must crash through the elaborate pinball security system to foil his arch-enemy. Help the world's coolest hedgehog save Mobius from mechanical doom by bouncing off more gears, bumpers, pistons, padlocks, and robotic enemies than any megalomaniac has ever assembled before.

A Mean, Green Muscle Machine

Livin' Large

The Incredible Hulk pits you against the maniacs of the Leader, who seems a little like the Hulk himself: he's ingenious, mutated by gamma rays, and solid green from head to foot. The major difference is that the Leader has his sights set on world domination, and he's assembled a military of mutated thugs to eliminate anyone who gets in his way. To reach the Leader's lair, you must wring robots' necks, ward off trident-wielding Romans, and bash preneural creatures to pieces, all while avoiding a variety of lethal booby traps. But what's really scary is that all the bosses are kind of like you — Tyrannus's IQ rivals your own. Aberration has the same glowing olive complexion, and the other three mirror you in their own sick ways.

How can you defeat these twisted versions of yourself? Mutation, of course, is the key. You're awesomely powerful in Super-Hulk form, with special moves like the Sonic Clap and Double Punch. A few hits reduce you to Hulk, plain and simple, and a few more shrink you into Dr. Bruce Banner, a brilliant but not too brawny guy — although he does have a few tricks up his slender sleeve. If you've been taken down to size, you can pick up Mega Gamma and bulk back up to Hulk-Out mode for nearly uncontrollable power.

With all these incarnations at your disposal, what are you waiting for? Take to the screen and tussle with some muscle!

If you can't tell a clear path, shadow a pillar or a wall.

OVERVIEW

First The Incredible Hulk exploded onto the Genesis. Now he squeezes his bulk onto your Game Gear, so you can battle nefarious mutants wherever you go. This one-player Action/Adventure title from U.S. Gold is a hand-to-hand combatant's dream game. The enemies are plentiful, the action is nonstop, and the graphics are eye-popping. HOT TIPS

- ✓ Knock enemies to the floor, then finish them off with an uppercut.
- ✓ Robots, Romans, and some floors don't die until they break into pieces.
- ✓ Break open crates for Gamma capsules.
- ✓ Normal Gammies increase your energy level, but you need a Mega Gamma to assume Hulk-Out status.
- ✓ Some power-ups reappear after you use them the first time.
- ✓ Give a lizard a love bath.
- ✓ You can elude a few enemies without ever confronting them.
- ✓ After you smash a pillar, you can throw the fragments.

Risk

World-domination types who've munched through the board-game version of Risk are gonna find a lot to like here. One to six players take turns conquering countries, moving troops, and lobbing cannonballs at the enemy. The game can be played in its traditional mode or arcade version, in which you blast away at the opponent with a battery of cannons. Options include a continuous attack and "fun battle" (which cuts to the gory details of the encounter). In either the pure strategy or hybrid arcade mode, this game delivers all the satisfying tactics and knee-deep of the original.

One to six players piece like buns trying to take over the world.

The arcade mode lets you blast away at your opponent during border battles.

NOT RIRIS

Dune 2: The Battle for Arrakis

Dune II: The Battle for Arrakis is a thinking warrior's game. That means you need more than firepower and quick reflexes. Economics are important. So are defensive structures and troops. And all that isn't worth a dime if you can't back it up with brilliant strategy. You play as one of three houses: the Atreides, the Ordos, or the Harkonnen. You're trying to squish the other two by constructing a base, mining for spice, and producing infantry and weaponry. Each house holds a particular advantage and requires a different strategy to win.

Think long-term when developing your base. Perilly structures are critical.

Build a refinery as soon as possible to start harvesting for spice.

NOT RIRIS

- ✓ Send your triles out immediately to search for new spice.
- ✓ Triangle enemy troops with your Harriers.

Everything in King of the Monsters 2 is bigger, badder, and nastier than in its predecessor. You choose from nine bawny creatures, each with its own barrage of special attacks and weapons. With colorful graphics, some special moves, and challenging competitors, King of the Monsters 2 packs a solid punch. Add the extra challenge of a third dimension — depth — and you have a cutesy game that will keep fighting fans coming back for more.

The mark of a true racing champion has always been the ability to win in any type of car and on any type of track. Mario Andretti is one of those select few. This one- or two-player Genesis title from EA Sports has different physics for each type of car and track. Multiple views, modes, and AI-based computer racers offer plenty of varied racing action. Normy's Beach Babe-O-Rama

No, it's not a filthy flick. This Genesis Action romp from Electronic Arts is a fairly typical platform-style title with comic overtones. The sham of the story is that some beach-goddess-types have been kidnapped, and Normy has to traverse time and space to recover them. As a single player, you face six bosses in 29 levels. Using weapons like Rubber Chucks, Cream Pies, and Bananaas—you go, canoeing, bounce on pigs, and swing from vines. While not ground-breaking in graphics, music, or sound effects, this is a playable little game that might offer a needy beach hero some excitement.

Search for hidden areas and hidden clues. Here, if you climb up behind the waterfall, you'll get extra energy.

Battleship

The classic board game Battleship enters the high-tech oceans of a Tom Clancy novel, thanks to some very creative design work from Mindscape. The game features eight levels and a total of 40 battles. Passwords are provided at the conclusion of each successful battle. As you work your way up the chain of command from lovely Seaman to lofty Admiral, you get new ships and weapons. The game gets more fun with Multi-warhead Tomahawk missiles, Aerial Recon, and enough gadgetry and goodies to keep the country's defense contractors occupied into the next century. Good solid fun.

Choplipter

Fly the hostile skies with Extreme Entertainment's Choplipter for the Game Gear. A terrorist organization has seized control of five Allied peace-keeping bases in oil-rich Meghreb and taken more than 100 hostages. Your mission: Airlift them to safety, infiltrate enemy lines to pick them up. Then blast tanks, garbatois, and other air fighters; lay waste to hidden prisons, and burn a jungle or two to the ground to bring them safely to your base. All this air combat requires precision aim and steering. When you're low on energy, the slightest collision with a building or even a bird will send you—and your men—up in flames.

Take aim at the tank from way up high—it has limited range. Once you've hit it, take out the satellite sensor and pick up the hostages on the ground.

Each character must survive two levels of fun-house horror if the group has a prayer of defeating their captor. With all this superhero action, we only wish that the graphics were a little crisper.

Formula One Racing as Real as It Gets

WARM-UP

Start Your Engines

You're wearing your helmet, gloves, and asbestos underwear. The sleek McLaren is juiced and ready to rip through the Donington course. Ground-trembling, bone-shaking screams of revving engines surround you. The sky looks a little gray—did you select your heavy-maction tires? But forget all that, 'cause the green flag is up and... hey, wait a sec! This is just a video game, isn't it?

When you damage your car in any way, get to the Pit Stop as soon as possible. The longer you wait, the more time you lose.

What makes Formula One so gripping? Action-packed video sequences, for one thing. Digitized voices of races and track announcers heighten the realism—and give you crucial advice.

Press the A and B buttons simultaneously when you're stuck offroad. This turns the car in any direction you need to go, and fast.

Can you out-smart the toughest opponents on wheels? Are you good enough to compete? Formula One World Championship tests your skill and your smarts on the Sega CD like no Racing Sim before. Formula One's innovative use of digitized live action puts you in the driver's seat like nothing you've seen before. By interspersing the game play with footage from real races, it lets you relive the thrill of the sport's greatest moments — and puts you in control of the outcome.

The World's Most Popular Game From Sega Sports!

WARM-UP

The rest of the world may call it football, but no matter what the name, soccer is still the biggest sport on the planet. Just in time for the World Cup's arrival in the United States, Sega is bringing you World Championship Soccer II for the Genesis. One to four players (with Sega's Team Player tap) get all the cleat-based, field-tossing action they can handle. Go for amazing saves, astounding 35-yard drives, and awesome headers as you try to tackle the World Championship. Check out your big goals again by watching the Instant Replay. Hit the field with any of 48 teams — 32 from the '94 season, and 16 from '86 and '90.

PUBLISHER: Sega Sports PLAYERS: 1 to 4 (with Team Player)
CONTROLLER: 3-button

Select from the '86, '90, or '94 World Championships, or design your own.

own World Championship from 32 of the top teams in the world. World Championship Soccer II was designed in Europe (where they know soccer) and has the largest sprites of any existing soccer title. No matter what you call it, the world's most popular game is going to get even more popular thanks to Sega.

Choose your teams by selecting the nation's flag. Then decide if the team is human or CPU.

When the ball is in the air you can head it by hitting Button A. Press the D-Button in the direction you wish the ball to go in.

A Corner Kick is awarded when one team kicks the ball out of play over the endlines. Choose your direction (oward the appropriate player) and head it.

To do a Sliding Tackle, choose the direction with the D-Button and tap Button C.

Change offensive and defensive configurations at the Formation Screen.

Kick the ball out of play over the side-lines, and it's time for a Throw In. Control the direction with your D-Button.

Go for the World Championship. We Dare ya.

NOTES

- ✓ Use the Sliding Tackle carefully, as it takes your player out of the flow for a couple of seconds.
- ✓ Make leading passes up the middle with the Kick Button, and regular passes with the Pass Button on the outside.
- ✓ When shooting at the goal, come in at an angle for a higher scoring percentage.
- ✓ It's tough to learn to control the direction, but if you can put a Header on goal, you stand a greater chance of scoring.
- ✓ If you want to dominate, go for the South American teams.

If your opponent receives a Yellow or Red Card for a tackle near the goal, the Penalty Kick you are awarded gives you a better chance of scoring.

Double Dribble: The Playoff Edition

Look at the team's stats before choosing from the Team Select screen.

Did we say eight players? Sure did. Just play in two Sega Team Player Adaptors and eight controllers and choose up sides, and you've got sweat-generating four-on-four action. Only got four folks available to play? No problem—just play in one Team Player and play two on two. Double Dribble: The Playoff Edition has three modes of play: Exhibition, Multi-play, and Playoff. Select the Playoff mode and choose your team from the 16 available. The first round consists of a best-of-five series, and the remaining rounds are best of seven. From the semifinal on, you get a password to the Game Results screen.

SHRILL! Your drawings are talking back at you!

If it's live-action wildlife you're after, unleash 200 crazy zoo critters on your Sega CD with The Animals. This Action game from Hi-Tech Expressions stars all your prehistoric pals from the hit movie Velociraptor Back. In Tatoo's Rainbow Islands, you've gotta rescue your brother by zapping rainbows at birds, cars, and other enemies. (OK, so this one's not really about animals, but check it out anyway.)

How about VizKidz! for the scoop on all these great games. They're anything but lame.

Goin' on a Bear Hunt

These little cubs get into a painful lot of trouble. They swim after eating, climb high cliffs, and get really, really lost. The trail back to the cozy compire looks them through fishing streams, a diamond cave, a honey orchard, and a butterfly hike. There's plenty of picnic food for a hungry bear cub! Trouble is, there's also a wild kingdom of mountain lions, crocodiles, and other snarly beasts lurking behind every tree. Zap them with your Bear Bottom Bounce for fun-flying fun.

The bonus level in the Haunted Forest is a fright indeed! Creepy rats, vampire bats, and extremely unfriendly ghosts swoop at you from every angle. It's enough to make your hair — or, fur — stand on end.

Sound tough? If this game's zillions of wild enemies seem a little un-bear-able, take along a friend. After all, two snouts are better than one.

Help Bobby find Bobby! In Taito's Rainbow Islands, a single-player Genesis adventure, the Wizard of Darkness has separated the twin stars of the arcade hit Bubble Bobble. Now Bobby must fight and jump his way through seven islands to rescue his brother, using rainbows to blast enemies, trap them, and reach high places.

You get through an island by hopping your way to the top. When you can't reach a platform, just shoot out a rainbow or two and walk on up. But watch out! A whole bunch of enemies want to keep you and your brother apart, and just one hit will cost you a life. And don't dawdle — if you take too long to finish an island, the tide rushes in and wipes you out. If you do make it to the top, you collect a treasure chest full of goodies.

You can take it slow in Easy or Normal mode, especially when you start with seven lives. But in Mania mode, you could wind up taking a bath before you get anywhere near Bobby's bro.

- Move quickly! Rainbows dissolve after a couple of seconds. You could go sailing through space or free a trapped enemy if you take too long.

You've Never Painted Like This

But if you've never heard your drawings talk back to you—or seen them move. But now Saddleback Graphics' My Paint brings your artwork to life on the Sega CD. It's filled with more than 200 drawings for you to color in, learn about, and listen to—My Paint has more sound effects than any other CD. You can even create a drawing with characters, animals, and objects that move. This CD goes way beyond crayons and paper.

So how do you create these roaring, wiggling works of art? First you pick one of ten coloring books with themes like the Rainforest and Dinosaurs. Then you select a drawing, like a brontosaurus munching lunch, and color it in. Add a few Stickers to your masterpiece. Some of them move, like the fluttering butterfly and the leaping flames, and some you just color in. Then you can click on the moving lips to hear all about your painting, or use the Explore Sounds tool to hear the beast in its own words. Click on the Flashing Colors tool to make the colors in your drawing glimmer on and off like on MTV video, and you've got a walking, talking, hip-hopping dino show.

Future Van Goghs will have fun with the freehand mode. You can draw perfect lines, squares, and circles, or just wing it and create your own shapes and squiggles with the Paintbrush tool. (Serious video artists will probably want to use the Mega Mouse in freehand mode.) Whether you start from scratch or jazz up a coloring book picture, My Paint makes your drawings way cool.

You play as either Laurie or Cecilia. Your adventures begin when you must rescue both your playmate and a family of confused dinos who find themselves in modern-day New York. Dodge nasty pigeons while flying through Central Park with Elsa, sidestep bayonets and flags in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, and avoid speeding cars as you skateboard with Rex through the city's busy streets. Most of all, watch out for Professor Screweyes, who's scheming to enslave your dinosaur friends in his creepy circus. Defeat him, and everyone's home free!

Power-ups make your adventures a little easier. Pick up wishing bubbles by squashing enemies and steering skillfully. Once you've collected a few, trade them in for helpful items like magic sneakers, a boomerang, and a balloon that makes you invincible to enemies. Though it's possible to get through each level without these pick-me-ups, they sure come in handy when your power is low or a boss is nearby. Use them wisely — wishing bubbles carry over to new lives, but any bonus items you've bought disappear if you lose a life.

GUEST ARTIST

Brian David Geyman from Florida is our lucky guest artist. And when we say Brian's lucky, we really mean it. The first time Brian played for Moon (based on his Genesis, his television smokes!) — literally! His first thought was "I knew this game was hot, but I didn't know it'd blow the TV away!" Apparently lightning had struck his house. Luckily it didn't do any serious damage...or affect his artistic talent — check it out.

(P.S. We meant to ask him if he noticed any major changes in his hairstyle — but he looks pretty "Sega.")

Toe Jam & Earl 2: Everything but the Lumpy Pillow

These codes for Toe Jam & Earl 2 for the Genesis give you most of Lammert's (the great Funkapotsman) favorite things available up to that point in the game. The code for Level 15 has all of Lammert's stuff except his Lumpy Pillow, which you find on Rooster Road Level 15, and it also gives you four lives.

Lost Secret of Splatter House 3

I found a secret level in Splatter House 3 for the Genesis, the latest Splatter House game.

In the first level, go the shortest way to the exit and try to get to the boss's room before the clock reaches 3:00. Then turn yourself into a mutant and beat the boss as fast as you can. When you beat the level, keep pressing Start. At the end of the dialog it should say "Stage X, the strange level." There are two one-ups, and when you beat the level, Rick will say "Huh???" Then you will go to Stage 2.

Shane Dignan, Livonia, MI

Sonic (Mutil) Spinball

There's a great multi-ball stage on Sonic Spinball for the Genesis. To reach it, get all the rings on a level. Then find the gate—it looks like a large sparkling ring. Voilà: multi-ball play!

Melody Hawman, San Jose, CA

Star Wars Sans Solo

This code's for Star Wars for the Game Gear.

When you turn on your game, press Left, 1, 2, and Start simultaneously all the way through the Lucas Film. When the stars are in the middle (if you did it right), you should see a blue Sega Logo in the top left corner. Now try to beat the game with an Lolo or Han.

Ren and Stimpy Codes

I've got codes for Ren and Stimpy: The Quest for the Shaven Yulcan Game Gear. There are five levels to this game, the first of which you do not need a code for. The four other level codes are:

It's better to look... than to hear.

My music doesn't play video games. It goes straight for the throat.

—Barry White

This CD could mean a whole new direction in video games music.

—The Star

The sheer quality of the music will appeal to all age groups and music tastes.

—Sara Pitt

A bad influence on our culture, find it here in J.A.R.S.

—Game Gear for you

My goal over the last couple of years has been to shy away from the lame single tunes found in video games, and give the players more of what they really want to hear: REAL MUSIC.

Adrenaline junkie. You are, admit it. That's why you've been waiting for Virtua Racing on Genesis. Well, it's here. With all the speed, realism and 3-D graphics of the arcade game. All it took was a quantum leap in processing speed—that's where our Race from four different perspectives. Need a break from the driver's seat? Switch views on the fly.

Change is good. That's why there are 3 different racetracks to choose from. (Beginner, medium, and if you're up to it, one for the experts.)

So much competition, so little time. Race against 15 other cars, the clock or, if you're shy, your own best time.
